Didier Seminar | April 7-8 Dr. Eddie Glaude, Jr.

Democracy in Black: How Race Still Enslaves the American Soul

The Presbyterian school of thought believed it was the church's responsibility to save the individual over and above any social and political engagement. It was stated that segregation was not inherently anti-Biblical or morally wrong, and it was not "the business" of the church to get involved.

When the Supreme Court ruled on racial integration of public education in 1954 however, concerned Presbyterian clergy at the next General Assembly gathered and determined that if segregation is not merely the separation of two peoples, but the subordination of one people to another, then the church's function in American society is "to assert moral leadership in the changing patterns of racial and cultural revolution." This group called "The Fellowship," played a vital role in passing the 1962 Civil Rights Act.

This year's signature Didier Seminar will speak to this legacy through the inclusion of two notable speakers addressing the persistent issue: "How Race Still Enslaves the American Soul."

Renowned author and professor of African American Studies at Princeton University, Dr. Eddie Glaude, Jr. will be the seminar speaker. J. Herbert Nelson, the first African American

Adult Enrichment

April 2, 11:15 a.m. | Assembly Room Book Discussion, Democracy in Black: How Race Still Enslaves the American Soul, by Eddie Glaude, Jr.

Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) will follow as our Sunday preacher.

This combination will offer an unprecedented chance to play our part in the continuing history of the Presbyterian Church and our nation.

Glaude believes the Obama presidency has not brought us a post-racial society, and he says racism has distorted and disfigured our national character.

Friday, April 7 | 7:30-9 p.m. Saturday, April 8 | 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. $30 | Register at hohchurch.org.

Sunday, April 9 | Worship | 10 a.m. J. Herbert Nelson, preaching.

Retirement (again)

Reverend Gale Robb

As I write this, I am just days away from a lot of different endings: the last staff meeting, the last session meeting, the last sermon. It's not like I've never been in this exact same place before—and not just at The House of Hope (although, goodness knows, I've said good-bye to this congregation a few times already)! Leaving is always somewhat bittersweet, but it also comes with a profound sense of gratitude for the people who came alongside during the ministry.

This time has been a little different. When I said yes to stepping in while David Van Dyke was on sabbatical, it was with the understanding that it was time-limited (eleven weeks), part-time (24 hours a week), and preaching six Sundays and Ash Wednesday. In other words, a very clear understanding of what I was being asked to do.

Of course, it never quite works out that way, and I have found myself back in the life of the church on a variety of different levels, all of which have been rewarding, if not necessarily fun. Through it all, I have had the good fortune to work with a remarkable staff who made my job a lot easier.

Coming out of retirement was not something I ever planned to do. When I retired, I was advised to take a year before committing to anything having to do with church. That first year, I didn't even come to church very often. I was simply "churched-out." But then I slowly found ways to step back into ministry, and quite unexpectedly found myself back at The House of Hope.

I wonder how many of us who have retired have "floundered" for a while, trying to figure out what's next. Many in my generation have retired later than "retirement age," hoping that we had a few more years left to do the work that we love. Many more are finding it necessary to work longer given the financial realities of retirement. Others are on a quest for a second or even third career. And still others are looking for volunteer possibilities. Retirement looks different these days because aging looks different these days, and we don't seem to have many models for how to do it. Sometime it just feels awkward, because our identity is no longer tied to what we did in our pre-retirement life, and it's hard to know just who we are.

We can be sure, though, that wherever we are on this journey, God is still with us, calling us to begin new adventures, to take risks, to walk through when unexpected doors open. It's been a privilege and a joy to be with all of you during this sabbatical time. Thank you for welcoming me back. See you in church!

> Blessings, Gale Robb Acting Pastor and Head of Staff

Mardi Gras Celebration

Let the good times roll! That phrase has become associated with Mardi Gras and it was definitely the theme of The House of Hope's Shrove Tuesday/Mardi Gras celebration on February 28. We enjoyed delicious New Orleans fare from Dixie's on Grand and famous King Cakes from Great Harvest Bread Co. The talented Finn Pope entertained us with lively jazz music. It was an evening of intergenerational fun, as members at each table collaborated on a Mardi Gras quiz and worked together to create a Mardi Gras float out of shoeboxes. The evening concluded with a parade of children carrying their floats and marching to When the Saints Come Marching In around the Great Hall. It was a wonderful evening of fun and fellowship!

One Great Hour of Sharing

Started in 1949, One Great Hour of Sharing is a long-standing ecumenical effort aimed at raising the funds necessary to provide relief and reconstruction for communities in the aftermath of disaster.

What started as an hour-long radio appeal has evolved to include 29 denominations, and has become the most participated-in offering in the PC(USA).

Today, projects supported by One Great Hour of Sharing are underway in more than 100 countries.

Women's Retreat

The Greening Power of Faith: Caring for Body, Mind, and Soul Facilitated by Rev. Julia A. Carlson

My first interim ministry ended in April when the world was gathering energy to burst open with new life. By contrast, I felt at loose ends. As I described this to my spiritual director, she pointed outside to where a tree was leafing out in the bright green of spring. She shared her belief that my life was out of sync with the natural world. I was mourning the end of a call and facing advent, while evidence of new life surrounded me.

Hildegard of Bingen would have said we were looking at the verdant presence of God on earth; she developed a theology she called Viriditas, or the "greening power of God." Anyone who has experienced grief understands the dissonance between a feeling of loss so great and the reality of seeing others go on with their errands, their work, and their joys. To find God present in experiences both good and bad, and come to desire rebirth, takes deep faith. To grow into faith, we engage with the Christian mystics and become practicing contemplatives.

Our Women's Retreat will focus on the work of Hildegard, who centuries ago wrote about the connection between faith and life; head and heart; body and soul; creature, creation, and Creator. Here is an invitation to engage Spirit, "the Life of the life of all creatures." Hildegard says that "God is life," and "God lives in every created thing" we are bid to tell our life stories, reflect on what God is up to, and grow more green and lush in our souls.

Centering Prayer | Mondays at 11 a.m. | Kirk Parlour

Centering is a form of contemplative prayer. Some might call it meditation. It is a practice of focusing on God, or resting in God, and when thoughts distract us from that intent, it becomes the practice of noticing and returning our focus to God through the use of a sacred word. Many practitioners say that it helps brings calm even in the most stressful situtations and others have noted lower blood pressure among its health benefits. Attendance varies each week; all are invited. Beginners as well as long-time practitioners are welcome; there will be an introduction to the practice at the beginning of each gathering. # Great Decisions | April 11, 4 p.m.

The Future of Europe Thomas C. Wolfe, Speaker

The outcome of the United Kingdom referendum of European Union membership (Brexit) sent shockwaves across the globe. It even caught British voters by surprise. The European Union has helped secure peace in Europe for the past 70 years, but now faces an uncertain future.

Amid a refugee crisis, lingering financial recession, and the constant specter of terrorism, unity seems more imperative than ever. But the Brexit vote underscores the complexities of integrating an extremely diverse continent. What will post-Brexit Europe look like, and how can U.S. foreign policy adapt?

Thomas C. Wolfe is an Associate Professor of History at the University of Minnesota. He is affiliated with the Department of Anthropology, the Institute for Global Studies, and the School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

Great Decisions is a non-partisan U.S. Foreign Policy discussion group established by the U.S. Foreign Policy Association and Global Minnesota.

A note from the Endowment Committee

 $\mathbf{\hat{\mathbf{V}}}$

Throughout the long history of The House of Hope, generous members have made decisions to direct legacy gifts to our church. What a record of thankfulness and praise to God!

This legacy is all around us. Gifts to our Endowment Fund sustain and support much of what we do here at this church. Donors have passed their gifts forward to us. So, we remember today, those who have gone before us, who loved this church and made a plan to support it beyond their days. We currently have 80 households who have stated their intention to leave a gift to the church. These individuals and families make up The Anchor Society. We appreciate you and thank you for your faithfulness.

Personally, I had been meaning to make a planned gift for years. I completely understood the process of donors leaving gifts, which continue to enhance our experience every day. Our Victorian founders and contemporaries of F. Scott Fitzgerald on the Avenue had a vision for a church and built it. Those who made and lost fortunes in the Great Depression still added their gifts, as did those of the Greatest Generation. During World War II, our members stocked a shelter under the sanctuary and left us their gifts. And in the prosperous 1950s, in spite of threats of nuclear war, they built the East wing.

When is it our turn? When is it my turn I asked myself. These gifts have touched my life, my heart, my song, my family and my spiritual "grounding." It was time, my turn. One day in the office, I simply said to Michelle, "I'm doing it, here it is, and I'll get you any details you need." Done! It felt great! It felt like I was folded into a historic wave of members going back over a century.

At Session the other night someone asked, "Do you have to be dead to give to the Endowment?" No! Here's an example: a few years ago, Carol and Shel Damberg established an endowed fund for the Choir School. It has been helping to fund our wonderful Choir School for several years and will continue to do so.

Be inspired and imagine what you will pass forward to this church, and then go one step further... establish that legacy to the church we love.

—Kathleen Schubert

Choir School Update

From our choristers: Choir School lets me..... "sing with friends, learn new things, have fun, worship and praise God, sing with passion, work with others to reach goals, build my confidence, be creative."

The Choir School is open to all children ages 4-18, both members and nonmembers of the congregation. Previous musical training is not required. Choristers in the Choir School learn the basics of music and singing, and also learn teamwork, discipline, and the joy of creating something beautiful together. Singing in weekly worship is a vital part of the Choir School, as music is a way to form and express our faith.

Upcoming events include

- Annual Spring Concert, May 14
- Registration for 2017-18, May 21-24

For more information or to sign up for an audition appointment please contact Sofia Ardalan, Choir School Director, at (651) 223-7548 or sofiaa@hohchurch.org.
