

“They are like trees planted by streams of water, which yield their fruit in its season, and their leaves do not wither. In all that they do, they prosper.”

PSALM 1:3

A tree can gently guide our understanding of planned giving. It begins with roots—quiet, faithful commitments shaped by love and trust in God’s future. The trunk speaks of continuity, holding together generations of care and witness. Branches reach outward, carrying hope into a future we may never fully see. And the leaves remind us of grace made visible—offering shelter, beauty, and renewal. In this way, a planned gift becomes a living expression of faith, continuing to bless others for years to come.

THE HOUSE OF HOPE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

“House of Hope has shaped my faith for decades. It’s where my children were baptized, where I found strength during difficult seasons, and where I’ve seen our community cared for with compassion and courage. I’ve always loved that this church looks outward as much as inward- welcoming neighbors, supporting partners, nurturing young people. Including House of Hope in my will felt like a natural next step in gratitude. My hope is that long after I’m gone, this congregation will still be proclaiming hope, serving generously, and forming new generations in faith. I’m grateful to help anchor that future.”
